

Logline: A gripping multi-season docuseries that delves into the Eaton Fire. Its devastating impact on the community, the resilience of its residents, and the lessons it holds for wildfire prevention and response. Told from the perspective of residents and business owners.

Synopsis: The Eaton Fire was more than just a wildfire—it was a stark reminder of the growing threat of fires in California’s dry, mountainous landscapes. This series takes viewers into the heart of the disaster. Following firsthand accounts from residents, firefighters, and experts who battled the flames and dealt with the aftermath. As well as examining the ultimate question. What next?

Through compelling visuals and in-depth interviews, we explore the origins of Altadena, the fire, the emergency response, what worked and what didn’t and the recovery efforts.

Themes & Topics:

- Conversion of culture’s, faiths & the arts.
- The importance of Altadena as a Black enclave
- Community building
- Trauma & mental health
- Environmental consequences and recovery
- Nature finds a way
- Hopes & dreams for Altadena 2.0